Newspaper Correspondent In a New Role.
LIBERATES MURDERERS
With a Dog Sitting Beside Him on the Bench He Acquits Chinamen Charged With Homicide.
New Under Arrest.
(By Telegraph.)
BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Heir Eugen S. Wolff, the well-known German explorer, who has just returned from China, where he acted as correspondent of the Tageblatt, is being prosecuted upon a charge of having, without authority, assumed the role of judge and with having liberated thirteen Chinese murderers of German missionaries.
According to the prosecution in a case, Herr Wolff, having heard of the trial, appeared in court with a dog named Schuster. Four vacant chairs stood in the hall in which the trial was to be held. Wolff seated himself in the most imposing of these, saying: "I'll take the highest and you, Herr Schuster (addressing the dog), will take the second highest at my right."
He then ordered the clerk of the court into the next chair on his right and, lastly, with a gesture, bade the wandering mandarin to take the fourth and lowest chair. The mandarin questioned Wolff as to his authority, whereupon the latter drew a roll of papers from his pocket and flourished it as his authority and the prisoners being introduced and declaring their innocence, Herr Wolff solemnly acquitted them and declared the proceedings ended. He then saddled his horse and departed.
The story caused the utmost astonishment. Bishop Anzer was in Germany at the time of the alleged acquittal, consulting the government in regard to the murders, which ultimately led to the acquittal of the Chinamen and only learned of what had happened on returning to China.

Mother and Two Children Perish in a Run.
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 19.—A childless mother and two children perished in a flood in this stream and endangered the lives of a dozen persons. Five children are missing and all are supposed to have been drowned. They are: IRENE LOFTUS, REGIS LOFTUS, MARGARET SHAUGHNESSY, GENEVIEVE SHAUGHNESSY, NELLIS HALL, ANNA HALLAPPEL.
The body of Regis Loftus was recovered this evening. Mrs. Loftus, mother of the two Loftus children, is dying from the effect of the shock and exposure.
The water in the run began to rise this morning and at 9 o'clock a great volume of water came down. The missing children, together with some older persons, were standing on a porch of the brick tenement house at No. 1010 W. Carson, in the rear of Main street, near West Carson. This porch overlooking the run. When the great wave, twenty feet high, came down, the porch was carried off and the people went with it.
Near the mouth of the run the sand dredge Pittsburgh was moored and when the men in it saw the wreckage coming down the stream and the people struggling for life, they stopped and tried to help. The men and the women were washed into the Ohio river, but were saved by the sand dredgers.
The great body of water did much damage. A sand bar fifteen feet high at the foot of the run was washed away.
Parties of men are searching for the bodies of the children.
There was a heavy and continuous downpour of rain throughout Western Pennsylvania from midnight until early this morning, and the result was that damage was done by washouts and the overflowing of small streams, but so far as known there were no other casualties.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.
Interesting Feature of the General Business Situation.
(By Telegraph.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Gratitude to tomorrow will say:
Perhaps the most interesting feature of the general business situation at the present is the pie of confidence with which the mercantile community meets the approach of the fall trade period. While, of course, based in some degree upon the results already achieved in many lines, it is more than a hope that the flattening crop outlook is here and the return of peace, with the expectation of benefits to our export trade, has led to a more optimistic attitude. The fact that the growth of the fall trade is found in the steady expansion now going on in bank clearings, the improving demand at higher prices for most makes of iron and steel, the generally favorable outlook for wheat, which, in default of a large movement of crops to market, point to a large return trade in manufactured goods to the agricultural sections, and the reports of continued activity in domestic trade, with a moderate increase in prices, at leading eastern markets, which tend to have not operated largely in the trade improvement. The farmers, and these done in iron and steel products, at advanced prices, and the movement of the proportionately less notable production of crude iron production. The figures in statistics, in fact, point to an even smaller output for the current month, which, with curtailment of exports, is naturally based upon undiminished conditions.
"Advances in many grades of iron notably Rosemount and Southern pig are features of the week.
The situation in cereals shows but little change. The wheat market is between plumbingly reduced supply, active milling demand at home and fair export inquiry in the one hand, and the very promising outlook, tends to steadiness in price, and other cereals sympathize with wheat.
"Large supplies of raw cotton at home and abroad, and the production of a yield this year nearly equal to that of the year before, has caused a decline in the price of the raw staple and quotations are a fraction lower for the week and two cents a pound lower than a year ago at this time. Reports as to conditions in the country are very encouraging. From winter wheat some slowness is noted in payments at the northwest, but this is expected to disappear when the spring wheat crop moves.
"Business failures are larger in number than last week, aggregating 19, against 17 last week, but compared with 221 in this week a year ago, 251 in 1896, 192 in 1895 and 251 in 1894."

A ROMANCE OF THE WAR.
How One of the Rough Riders Found His Mother.
That truth is stranger than fiction is again proved by the strange story of a soldier in the Rough Riders who, after finding his mother after forty years, says a Jacksonville (Fla.) special to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "I met last night for Port Maudslayi, a mother whom he has thought dead for many years. She is now 84 years of age, and she will now see a boy she met in the Rough Riders for many years. Many years ago the family lived on the border. Indians made a raid and killed Williams' father. The mother, with heroic spirit, bravely fought off the Indians, killing several, when she was knocked down by the merciless blows of a tomahawk wielded by a red demon. Then, then a youngster of 7 or 8 was taken with the band. He lived with them and was for a year or two subjected to the worst kind of treatment. He bears scars where slits were made and skin torn off by the inhuman Indians in their efforts to 'harden' him. He also forgot the English language.
"One day the band he was with met defeat and he was rescued by the Indians. He took several years to win his way back to civilization. He was then a strong, healthy youth of 18 or 20. He took up the cowboy's pursuit, and lived in Wyoming. He enlisted under Colonel Torrey in the Rough Riders.
"In some manner the strange story leaked out, and in some way his old mother, now living at Port Maudslayi, South Florida, 200 miles south of here, was found out. She communicated with her friends, who told her the story, and formed of the fact that his mother still lived. In less than twenty hours he secured a furlough, and last night he met his old mother. It was a queer story, and the company was taken to the depot to see him off and wish him all manner of good luck and good wishes. Williams is one of the best men in the Rough Riders, and he speaks highly of his company. He was a very quiet man, but with a courage and spirit that carried him through everything.
"After a strange case came up this morning, when a private in the Rough Riders, named John, who had been in the Rough Riders for over ten years, The old man's western home suddenly and this morning he was found at Jacksonville, purchasing a small business. The soldier entered the store last night. The recognition was mutual. It was a strange meeting and an affectionate one.

PEACE REJOICINGS IN THE EAST.
Looking Backward Over Former Peace Treaty.
The President, in a proclamation, announcing the cessation of hostilities with France, followed at a later date by a proclamation of peace with the treaty of Paris is recalled, but that will be a formality, says the Chicago Tribune. Herold, Peace is assured, and there is no reason why we should not follow the example of our ancestors and rejoice.

ANOTHER KING IN SPAIN.
He Rules the Gypsies and His Home is Granada.
There is one king in Spain who does not on Americans, who is pining for them this summer, and who does not hesitate to say so plainly. This is the king of the gypsies at Granada, says the Evening Transcript. He has long depended upon Americans and English for the prosperity of his people, who live in caves across the Darro from Alhambra Hill, where the homes every day as to his office or his throne. He sells to travelers photographs of his own tall, picturesque self, romantically rigged and very operatic-looking. He directs the singing and dancing of the gypsy singers and dancers and fortune-tellers who haunt the avenue of the Alhambra or appear before the tourist in the Alameda or the pleasant gardens of Granada.
There have not been as many English people as usual in Granada this year on account of the lack of love shown in the peninsula to all Anglo-Saxons, but one who was there interviewed the old king sitting in the shade of a tree. Charles V. and his army and his army next door to the Alhambra palace within the great inclosure of the fortress. And the king said his people were getting so hard up that he didn't know but that he might be obliged to consent to their making a descent in of numbers upon the bakershops of Granada.
When the tide turns and the Americans are more numerous than ever before in Granada they will be welcomed by the gypsy king and his army and his army next door to the Alhambra palace within the great inclosure of the fortress. And the king said his people were getting so hard up that he didn't know but that he might be obliged to consent to their making a descent in of numbers upon the bakershops of Granada.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE.
King Humbert, of Italy, is one of the finest horsemen in Europe.
Capt. Alfred S. Baker, who has been ordered to command the 1st Cavalry, was the Oregon's first commandant when she took her rough initial sea trips.
Dr. Edward Bibbins Ayling, whose death in London was noted recently, married the daughter of the famous Earl Marischal, Lord of the Isles, and husband, she was a Scottish power.
Adolph Schenckel, the noted Viennese actor, who is the doyen of the famous Hofburg Theatre company of the Austrian capital, will come to this country for a brief season of appearances.
Former Governor Waite, of Colorado, who left his state to become a resident of Texas, has returned to Colorado, and announces that he will write a book, which he will call "A History of War in Colorado."
Now that Mr. Gladstone is dead there are only four men living who were members of the House of Commons when, on the 26th of November, 1832, the Queen opened her first Parliament. These are: Mr. John Lubbock, then member from Westminster; Mr. Herbert, then member from Dorsetshire; Mr. Wentworth Fitzwilliam, and Sir Thomas Acland, then members for West Somerset.
United States Consul Bonaventura Whitman, stationed at Hong Kong, was born in Batavia, N. Y. His father was a Methodist clergyman. The present consul drifted in his younger days to Rome, Italy, and was with a mission to Washington in 1892. He was then a member of the United States and Great Britain, and he is now glad to maintain friendly relations with the continental powers, but they will not be deceived about the motive that prompts them. It is our success that has opened their eyes.

THE FIRST WOMAN DOCTOR.
She Practiced in Athens Disguised as a Man.
The first qualified woman physician in Europe, so far as is known, was a young Athenian woman named Agnodice, says the Medical Journal. In the year 298 B. C. she disguised herself as a man and began to attend the medical school at Athens, which was then against the law for a woman to do. She practiced with extraordinary success. But her secret becoming known, she was prosecuted for studying and practicing medicine, and she was sentenced to a fine. She then fled to Rome, where she was a woman, however, raised so furious an agitation in consequence that the case was dropped and the law repealed. Coming later times, we find several women who obtained the degree of doctor, and in the present century, in Europe before 1822, especially in the Moorish universities of Spain, Trinita, of Rugiero, in the eleventh century had a European reputation, and practiced as a doctor in Salerno. At the beginning of the fourteenth century, Agnodice Boechi, not only received the degree of doctor, but was professor of medicine in the famous University of Bologna. Since then two other women have been professors of medicine subject to the same limitations. The first was Magolina (anatomy) and Dr. Maria delle Donne (obstetric medicine), the latter being appointed in 1739. In the year 1811 an edict was issued in France forbidding surgeons and female surgeons from practicing, and the result was a satisfactory examination before the proper authorities. These female surgeons are again referred to in an edict in 1822.

POETIC JUSTICE.
General Fitzhugh Lee, it is stated, is to have the honor of entering Havana at the head of an army to take command in the name of the United States. There certainly would be a poetic fitness in this. Lee, while he was chief of the staff of the army, rendered his country patriotic services of great value and by so doing incurred the enmity of the Spaniards on the island. When he left he was followed by their hearty curses, and long after the war he was a victim of the Spanish army representing the supremacy of the United States over Spain.

THE EFFECT OF SUCCESS.
How Continental European Sentiment Has Been Affected by Our Victories.
(Indianapolis News.)
The United States is no more entitled to the good opinion of the world at the present time than it was six months ago. It is true that it has just accomplished a great piece of work, but it is this government has always espoused the cause of civilization, and it has stood for liberty. Yet when the war broke out the sentiment in Europe was almost unanimously hostile to the United States. Even in England there was a good deal of criticism. The French and German papers were intensely hostile, as were those of Russia and Austria.
With the first American victory the tide began to turn, and now, with the triumph of American arms, it has turned completely. This result has been brought about simply by our success. The cause for which we fought was as it is today. If we are right now, as we are admitted, we were right then. But now we are praised, while then we were condemned. If we had failed, there would have been no reversal of the unfavorable opinion. In a word, we have been subjected to the vulgar test of success, and as we have stood that test, we must have all the friends we ever desired. Great Britain is more than ever convinced of the righteousness of the cause in behalf of which we were at war. The German and French papers friendly to Germany, our President, our army and navy, our institutions, our manner of conducting the war, have all been enthusiastically praised by the people of Europe.
It is recognized that, no matter what this government may decide to do with the Philippines, the United States is destined to have a great influence in the politics of the world. The vast strength of the country has been demonstrated in a most effective way. Germany, for example, understands that his navy would be no match for the navy of the United States, and he also knows that he could not hope to attack this country successfully till he had first vanquished our navy. It has been shown that our ships are manned by most skillful seamen and that our expert gunners, and almost more important than these things is the fact that the auxiliary navy that we have developed with such startling rapidity is wonderfully efficient. Our army, too, has won the admiration of foreign critics. In a word, the United States has shown itself to be an extremely powerful nation, and its naval power, weak as Spain was, is now a possibility in three short months. But now that the work has been done, there are no more enemies and no more friends. Neither Germany nor France is interested in the establishment of a government in Cuba and Porto Rico, but they are both interested in standing well with a power that has shown itself so well. It is our success that has opened their eyes.

PLAYED IN VARIOUS KEYS.
The Discoriant Result Got the Family Into Trouble.
Before the police court of Emporia last Saturday a whole family of children was arraigned on the charge of maintaining a nuisance. The defendant, a Kansas City Journal. It was in evidence that they kept the piano going from 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night. The fact was almost brought out by the fact that the piano was played in various keys. The mother of the family who is trying to play by ear plays the same note right along on the bass and uses only one finger to hit the keys that carry the tune. It was proved that the family used a mouth organ keyed in G, while the only chords the boys knew are in C and the accordian, which is often used, is tuned in A. In rendering his decision Judge Smith said: "I have no other alternatives before me which compels me to recognize the piano as in any sense a musical instrument per se. The music of the piano is not a nuisance, but the piano, and it devolves upon the defendant to show that they are musicians—which they have not done. Practice on the piano is merely an attempt to excite the nerves of the neighborhood, and in effect, a kind of preparatory for legerdemain that often passes for music in parlors. But it is time this legerdemain found its legal limitations. Here is a case in which it is a nuisance against society, and under the general welfare clause of the Constitution of the United States, in lieu of a city ordinance, I am compelled to find these defendants guilty. The fine will be $10 on each count."

BITS OF HUMOR.
Husband (angrily, after a somewhat heated argument with his better half): "Do you take me for a fool?" Wife (sneakingly): "No, John! But I may be mistaken."—Tit-Bits.
The Result. Accomplished—Deacon Jones: "What! Not going to church any more? I thought you told me not to go. I thought you hadn't missed a Sunday in three years."—Furness Cornerly: "So, I hadn't. So I hadn't. But what's the use now? Times air getting as good as they ever was."—Judge.
An Alluring Idea.—"What I want to see," exclaimed Senator Sorghum, "is the annexation of Hawaii. I envy the men who will one day come to this capitol and represent the interests of the far distant state." "Yes," replied an enthusiastic young friend. "They will look upon as giant reminders of the progress of civilization and of the increasing power of this nation." "So they will," answered the Senator; "they will. And in addition to all that, just think of the mile-age."—Washington Star.
"I GO, BUT I SHALL RETURN."
(Mail and Express.)
There is a peculiar fitness in the reported selection of Major General Fitzhugh Lee to command the military expedition in Cuba as soon as peace shall be concluded. It is a post that the former consul general has deserved from the first, and there is no one who deserves the honor more than he. At the head of the Seventh Army Corps the general can fulfill the prophecy he made when he left Havana at the outbreak of hostilities. "I go," he said, "but I shall return." It would be more appropriate if it could be arranged that General Lee should raise "Old Glory" over the Cuban capital. No surer indications could be given of the future of this nation than the raising of the Stars and Stripes over Havana by the nephew of the man who lowered the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy at Appomattox thirty-three short years ago.

PEOPLE IN GENERAL.
The Grand Duke of Luxembourg and Duke of Nassau, the oldest reigning sovereign in Europe, has just celebrated his eighty-first birthday, yet he has only been on the throne about ten years.
Mrs. Florence Chaven, who is, with the exception of Miss Nightingale, the oldest trained nurse in England, cherishes among her decorations the Iron Cross, the order of merit presented by Ben Jordan, the prize fighter, who recently whipped George Dixon, America's champion feather-weight, is the son of a London clergyman, and has been disowned by his family because of his taking up pugilism.
FISHING DON'TS.
Don't forget the belt.
Don't carry hooks in your trousers pocket.
Don't despise a faint nibble. It may be the biggest fish.
Don't tell "I've got one!" until you've landed him.
Don't try to slip the landing net over a fish tail foremost.
Don't be about that big catch. It's been hooked by the small boy with a string and bent pin. He often gets a good haul.

NEGRO SOLDIER KILLED.
MACON, Ga., Aug. 19.—A special to the Telegraph from Hampton, Ga., says:
Jim Neely, a negro private in the Twenty-fifth Infantry, was shot and killed at Hampton, Ga., last night. He had been in the hospital for a long time, and he had been a soldier since he was a boy. He was a very brave and patriotic soldier, and he was very popular among his fellow soldiers. He was killed while on duty, and his death was a great loss to the regiment. His body was buried in the national cemetery at Hampton, Ga., and his family was notified of his death. His death was a great loss to the regiment, and it was a great honor to have him as a soldier.

a back view of which is given in the above illustration. With this famous appliance I have treated and cured thousands upon thousands of weak men in all parts of the world. I have used this belt on people who were on the verge of suicide, and I have heard their praises after a few months use of the life-giving Electricity. I have known men who were so weak as to be entirely incapacitated, men really unfit for married life, come to me after using my belt and say, "Doctor, I am a new man. All praise to your wonderful Electric appliance."

Hearing these statements and seeing as I do all sides on this overwhelming testimony to the virtues of my Belt, I persist, in justice to myself, proclaim it the greatest remedy in the world for these troubles.
